

Heading to the Summer Olympics in Tokyo? Here's what to pack!

Packing cubes

If you haven't already invested in a pack of these lifesavers—now's the time! Not only do they help you get all of your essentials into one bag, but they also help you stay organized while you are abroad. Most 5-piece sets include one for shirts, one for bottoms, one for accessories, one for dirty clothes, and one for all of your Olympics souvenirs! Keeping everything organized in your suitcase and hotel room will help you make the most of your time in the morning so you can maximize your Olympics experience!

Sun Hats & Sunscreen

Tokyo is typically very sunny and hot during the summer months of July and August, which means you will want to pack ample sun protection. Whether you reapply sunscreen religiously, or prefer the shade of a hat or umbrella, you have plenty of options for keeping sunburns at bay. Personally, I love lightweight and breathable hats that I can easily toss in my suitcase or fold up into my day bag. Stay extra cool with portable rechargeable fans that can be plugged into your phone or carried around your neck.

Secure/anti-theft Travel Handbags

Amidst the celebrations leading up to any Olympics events are safety concerns. While the pros take care of terrorist-related security breaches, you're on your own when it comes to navigating the crowds on the streets. With big crowds of distracted people, you should always do your best to plan for the worst by packing your day bag as securely as possible. Lucky for you, clever bags like the Travelon Anti-Theft Bag have compartments with RFID blocking cards, passport slots, slash-proof construction, and adjustable. Cut-proof straps to help stop pickpockets in their tracks so you can focus on enjoying your vacation!

You can take your security a step further with RFID Blocking Passport and Currency Wallet's to ensure you have a hassle-free experience in Tokyo.

Light Cotton Clothing

Not only will cotton clothing keep you cool in Tokyo's blistering summer, but long sleeve shirts will also give you protection from the sun and insects. Plus, if you left room in your luggage for souvenirs, you can easily wash and re-wear cotton clothing items!
